After a recent collaboration with Goose Design Consultants, Fraas UK has been able to instil its autumn/winter 2012 collection of scarves with a fresh wealth of fashion knowledge and inspiration. The latest styles represent three trend themes for buyers, and are separated into individual lines. With a colour palette including cyan blue, deep honeysuckle and citrus tones, Mineral Explosion is influenced by symmetrical explosions of minerals and powder composites. Colour and texture are used to create key shapes and marbling effects. Second trend, Woodland Guardian, focuses on the circle of life, garnering print inspiration from forest animals and plants in shades of tangerine and green. Decadent Traveller, the final range, is informed by exploration of foreign landscapes, architecture and culture, with elaborate forms and patterns.

Founded in 1948, Owen Barry has been producing sheepskin and leather products from traditional workshops in Somerset ever since. Even today, each item is still meticulously cut and made by British craftsmen using the finest British and European skins. Its distinctive, award-winning handbag collection currently offers over 50 designs, with upwards of 8,000 skin combinations available. Styles in the collection now range from slouchy, unstructured everyday pieces to cutting-edge fashion designs. To coincide with the launch of the new brand identity, Owen Barry is offering over 20 of its best-selling styles in popular and on-trend skins as a ready-to-order stock program.

Usmani and Sanghera established SU London in 2006 at Spitalfields.

As both had over 20 years of experience in the fashion production sector, they felt that it was the right time to launch a collection of their own. With a desire to create pieces that reflect high quality, distinctive craftsmanship and progressive design, they decided to produce a luxury leather bag collection for men and women. Aiming to fill a mid-market gap between the high street and high-end design, each bag is designed with quality, functionality and timelessness in mind. Many of the different styles are multi-functional, in order to suit casual and formal occasions, and the designers are preoccupied with sourcing the finest and most unusual leathers and details.

With a penchant for clean lines, fine detailing and streamlined simplicity, ILEX luxury leather accessories showcase fine craftsmanship, innovative design and unmistakable glamour. Steering clear of chasing trends, the label has interpreted the essence of Italian fashion from its design studio in Rome since 1993. Through contemporary styling, the classically chic pieces complement on-trend ensembles. Each bag is hand-made by trained artisans, and skins are hand-picked for originality. Committed to impeccable finishes, and with a long-standing reputation for quality, the brand's range now includes handbags, purses, wallets, belts, briefcases and luggage.
